Day 3, Sunday, July 6, 2014

The New Money Initiative

Many countries world wide still suffer from the last international financial crisis. Banks had to be saved, countries had to be supported, many suffered and continue to suffer in their private or professional lives.

A proverb says that every crisis offers a chance. What is the chance we could take? What are the insights and what steps could be done to prevent a monetary crisis in the future?

Day 3, Sunday, July 6, 2014

Round Table Discussions

We are all students and learners in this world of constant change. Round tables support the exchange of knowledge in a small group by giving time to reflect and discuss a topic that was presented by an expert before.

Be part of the change, be there with your insights and your knowledge.

Drinks and snacks are available at the buffet.

Day 3, Sunday, July 6, 2014

International Food Market

Food has become one of the most attractive fields for financial investors. 'Food is always needed' they would probably say.

We, the people of this planet will have to make decisions when it comes to food production and food quality. It is not easy to make up our mind as there is a lot of information distributed by all the different food market players. Yet - it is important to open our eyes and listen.

We'll discuss at the round table after Susanne Triner offers an overview.
